Richard Saul Wurman, Founder of TED Talks, is described as an "intellectual provocateur" with a "hummingbird mind." The acknowledged father of Information Architecture, Wurman has written, designed and published 83 books and has created countless communities through his innovative conferences. He embraces the insecure space of the unknown and leverages ignorance into the shared riches of the many. He continues to problem solve and engage in the next great solutions to our worlds social challenges.